

PROTO MYTHOS

After writing and recording at home for several years, Israeli musician Tom Treivish decided to take his material to the next level and record a concept album that centers on a subject close to heart – animal rights.

After contacting producer Noam Akrabi in 2011, they began to consolidate the songs into In Human Sight – a rock concept album that comprises of 10 original songs that stray away from the mainstream while remaining accessible and engaging.

The Album

In Human Sight is a rock concept album that deals with animal treatment and animal rights today and is meant to serve as a voice for the voiceless.

Containing 10 songs that differ in style, In Human Sight uniformly portrays various angles of a world view point that is often overlooked, in order to raise awareness of speciesism.

Protomythos will donate 20% of all album sales directly to animal rights organizations.
